FOREWORD

We are what we are because of what our ancestors were. Many of our ancestors were settlers in Virginia. Colonial Virginia, It's people and Customs, by Mary Newton Stanard, p. 530: "Not a single instance of a Virginia family descended from a convict has ever been found by any genealogist."

COAT-of-ARMS

A knight in battle dress was unrecognizable. In order to distinguish between friend and foe, patterns were woven into cloth surcoats worn over the armor, thus was born the term "coat-of-arms." Identifications were put on shield and helmet.

The Anthony coat-of-arms is one of the most ancient, varying only in family changes. The one used with this record is said to be that of the "Virginia Anthonys." No proof has been found that this design belonged to our ancestor. It is described as follows:

ARMS -- Argent (silver denotes sincerity), a leopard's head gules (red, denotes magnanimity) between two flanches sable (black).
Sometimes with the addition of: on the dexter (right of wearer) a rose (seventh son) on the sinister (left of wearer) a mullet (five pointed star) or (gold).

CREST-- A demi (half) goat proper, armed and attired or (gold). (The goat denoted a marked man who wins victory by policy or one who fares hard to be in high employ and honored.) In chief a crescent for difference.

(The Rhode Island Anthony family's design has "Plates," or roundels on the flanches; the leopard's head is in profile.)

ORGANIZATION

Each branch of the family is presented in outline form, giving the twigs of each branch before presenting the next branch. The Anthony descendant is treated as the "head of the family group." The capital letters, initials, at the left of the page opposite the heading of a family group, may be called a miniature pedigree. For example:
AHCPB stands for Anthony, Hart, Clark, Tate, Blakey. By adding the initial of the spouse's last name to the Anthony descendant's pedigree we get that of the children. In case of the allied families, the mini-pedgree is placed at the right of the page.

MARK ANTHONY AND DESCENDANTS

The Latin spelling for MARK ANTHONY was MARCUS ANTONIUS. The study of the Bible and Roman legends, with imagination working overtime, has come up with this fantastic theory. MARS was an ancient spelling of MARCUS. MARS was the father of ROMULUS and REMUS, the builders of Rome. St. MARK of the New Testament suggests it's Hebrew origin. Our western civilization had it's roots in Hebrew culture, which began in the land of Ur of the Chaldees. The legend of Romulus and Remus originated about the time of the dispersion of the "Lost Tribes of Isarael." Their father could have been "MARS of ANATHOTH," a location 6 km. northeast of Jerusalem, in the area of Plaestine allotted to the tribe of Benjamin, whose grandson was named ANATHOTH. The hypothetical MARS of ANATHOTH may have become MARK ANTHONY. ANTONIA Castle, Jerusalem, was destroyed 75 A. D. with the Temple.

The twelve-domed Church of St. Marcus, whose bone rest there, is part of Der Anaba Antonius, the St. Anthony Monastery, located on the west bank of the Gulf of Suez. The followers of St. Anthony, b. ca 240 A. D., started the first monastery. St. Anthony used a T-shaped staff. The Coptic Monks of Der Anaba Antonius use the T-shaped prayer staffs. The "Tau Cross," a Greek letter, stamped upon his dress, is called St. Anthony's Cross.

The name, Anthony, is found on ancient records in the various forms of Antonie, Antony, and Anthonie. Marie Antoinette was Mary Anthony.

Ancestors and Descendants of Cader Atkins Parker, 1810-1886, by Judge Robert S. Roddenbery, Jr., P. O. Box 601, Moultrie, Ga., says:

"Some have surmised (without proof) that Louisa Candler was descended from Mark Antony, the Roman general of Caesar's time, or at any rate the Antonius family of that period. But all we know is that she was a direct descendant of Marcus (Mark) Antony (Anthony), a merchant of Genoa, Italy, in the 17th century, whose son, also Mark Antony, came to New Kent Co., Va., in 1699.

"Marcus Antony (Anthony), the Genoese Merchant, emigrated from Italy to Holland. When his son Mark Anthony was about 17 yrs. old, he was sent to Italy to school. Being of an adventuresome disposition, Mark ran away from school and embarked on a trading vessel which was soon captured by Algerian pirates, and his captors sold him into slavery in Algeria. Soon after, Mark and a fellow slave were sent to cut wood. Driven to desperation by the cruelty of merciless taskmaster, they took him unawares and killed him with an axe, concealing themselves in the forest until night, they made their way under cover of darkness to the beach where they found a boat and rowed to a British vessel lying at anchor in the bay. Telling the captain of their capture and brutal treatment, they prevailed on him to take them on board and he concealed them in the ship's cargo, until they were well out to sea. They landed at a Virginia port and the master of the vessel sold them to a farmer in New Kent Co. for a term of 3 yrs. to pay the passage. After Mark Anthony served the 3 yrs., with his new master, he settled on the upper James River near the present city of Lynchburg and there established a mill and trading post of considerable importance.

"About 1703 Mark Anthony married Isabella Hart who bore him 12 sons and one daughter. One of the sons, Joseph Anthony, b. May 2, 1713, married April 22, 1741, Elizabeth Clark, daughter of Capt. Christopher Clark."

"Away back perhaps about the middle of the eighteenth century, a man who became involved in some seditious movement against the government and was condemned and sentenced to banishment to a lone island to work in a quarry for life under guard, when he saw a ship passing nearby, knocked the guard down with the tool with which he was working and swam to the ship and got on board; having nothing to pay his fare, he found himself bound to the captain of the ship for fourteen years to land him on shore in America. This man's name was Anthony, which accounts for the middle name of my mother's youngest brother, Joseph Anthony Blakey. The blood of this man was held in very high esteem by the family, as far as it could be traced. The only one of them that attained to renown, that I know of was Dick Hubbard who became governor of Texas."

Magazine of American Genealogy, Feb. 1930, No. 7:

"Mark Anthony came from Genoa, Italy; a trader; settled in the James River Colony, New Kent Co., about 1700; accumulated a large fortune; issue: probably Joseph who owned land in Hanover, Louisa and Albemarle Co.; living in Henry Co. 1782; md. 1741 Elizabeth Clark, b. 1720, dau. of Capt. Christopher Clark and wife Penelope Massie; issue about 14 children; probably John who patented large tracts of land in Bedford Co.; Justice of peace Albemarle Co., 1745-6; claimed pay of Capt. in rangers of bounty land, 1763; descendants owned land near Blington and Leesville, Va.

Col. Am. Candler of Co., His Ancestry and Progeny, by Gov. A. D. Candler, page 54:

"From a manuscript of Ignatius Pew which says concerning his grandfather, Am. Candler, he married about 1760, Elizabeth Anthony whose grandfather was a Genoese Italian and her mother was a Clark. She had brothers who died and left large families: Christopher, Joseph, Micajah, Mark, James, Meling and sisters: Mary and Minfred who married Carters, Agnes who married a Blakey, and married a Lane, one a Cooper, Judith a Ware and Penelope a Johnson. She was a Quaker and a preacher."

MARK ANTHONY ✓

The Quit Rents, New Kent Co., Va., by Smith, p. 3:

Mark Anthony, 160 acres. (Quit rents were tributes paid to the king.)

St. Paul's Parish, Hanover Co., Va., records:

Feb. 1707/8, Mark Anthonys added to list of Tithables.

Mar. 14, 1708/9, Mark Anthony listed in precinct 26.

Sept. 17, 1711, Mark Anthony paid 10 c.

Mar. 21, 1721, Mark Anthony mentioned.

Aug. 10, 1721, Mark Anthony paid for keeping a bastard child for 6 mo.

Since Mark Anthony, Jun., is not mentioned after 1739, it is presumed that Mark Anthony, Sr., died about that time. records exist until 1769 for Mark Anthony.

Isabella Hart is accepted as wife of Mark Anthony by most descendants. One record lists Judith Penelope Moorman. This may be confused with the grandson, Christopher Anthony's wife Judith Moorman. One record lists his wife as Mrs. Nancy Hart. No court or church record has been found to prove either. Joseph Anthony, Sr., and John Anthony of what became Campbell Co. are accepted as sons with certainty, others are listed with some evidence.

Joseph Anthony, Sr., b. May 2, 1713, New Kent Co., Va., d. Nov. 23, 1785, son of Mark Anthony and Isabella Hart, md. Apr. 27, 1741, Elizabeth Clark, dau. of Christopher Clark and Penelope Johnson. The Lineage Book, National Society of the Daughters of American Colonists, Vol. 5, p. 252, says Joseph Anthony (1713-85) of Hanover Co., Va., served in the French and Indian Wars. History of Albemarle, by Woods, says Joseph Anthony, Sr. entered 2040 acres of land in Biscuit Valley and moved to Bedford Co. Joseph lived on "Lawyer's road" in what is now Franklin Co., near the Staunton River. In his lifetime it was Henry Co.

The Staunton River is unique in that it has two names. At both ends it is called Roanoke and in the middle it is called Staunton.

The first academy in Henry Co. was on the Anthony place. In 1782 Joseph was living in Henry Co. at which time he sold John Clark of Campbell 550 acres of land on the head waters of Beaver and Seneca Creek, north side of Otter River along Clement's line to Lady Mary Reed's corner. It is thought that due to his advanced age and his Quaker religion that it was not he but Joseph, Jr., who was appointed 2nd. Lieut. in 1778 in Bedford Co. Descendants get into the DAR by stating the he served in the capacity of a Patriot, having taken the Oath of Allegiance in Henry Co., Va., 1777, and by furnishing supplies for the Continental Army. Records show that he furnished supplies for the Revolutionary Army for which it is said the Tories cut off his silver knee buckles.

Elizabeth, wife of Joseph, Sr., was truly a super woman. She was the daughter of Christopher Clark. She was born Feb. 15, 1720 or 22, in Hanover Co., lived to be 105 years of age and saw 300 of her descendants. After the death of her husband, she moved from Virginia to Wilkes Co., Ga., and lived on Broad River. It is said that she died in Franklin Co. There is evidence that 12 of her children, and many kinsmen came to Georgia at about the same time. She became a Quaker preacher and rode back through the wilderness preaching the gospel. She is said to have made the trip back to Virginia three times. Many prominent families have descended from her. It is said that she and her sister, Rachel, were given half a dozen silver spoons by their parents. Some of the spoons are treasured heirlooms.

Virginia Tax Payers, 1872-87:
"Anthony, Jos. Sr., 18 slaves, Henry Co."

WILL of Joseph Anthony, dated Sept. 24, 1785:

To my loving wife Elizabeth Anthony during her widowhood nine negroes with the plantation I now live on, also my stock, household goods and furniture. If my wife should marry again, my executors shall take possession for the use of my wife and children during her natural life.

To my children Sarah Cooper, Christopher Anthony, Elizabeth Candler, Penelope Johnson, Joseph Anthony, James Anthony, Mary Carter and Agnes Blakey only one shilling each, I have given them as much of my estate at the time of their marrying as I thought proper.

To my son Micajah Anthony that part of the land purchased of James Young that lies on the south side of the Lawyers rode to the line between him and my son Joseph Anthony and two negroes.

To my daughter Rachel Anthony 2 negroes.

To my daughter Winiford Anthony 2 negroes.

To my son Mark Anthony half of the land whereon I now (live) after his Mother's decease; two negroes.

To my son Bolling Anthony one half of the land whereon I now live(?) after his mother's decease: also two negroes, James and the eldest child of Milley which I formerly lent to Johnson, which I now give to my son Micajah Anthony.

To my daughter Judith Anthony three negroes.

Unto those my last mentioned children each of them one horse and saddle, two cows and calves, one feather bed and furniture, or as much money as will purchase them as they marry or come of age.

At the decease of my wife my estate to be equally divided amongst all my children or their heirs except my daughter Elizabeth Candler. I only give her at the decease of my wife 5 sterling.

The negro which I lent to Penelopy Johnson if she refuse to keep as a slave to be returned to my estate.

My wife Elizabeth Anthony and my three sons Joseph Anthony, James Anthony, and Micajah Anthony and Thomas Cooper executors.

MARK ANTHONY COOPER, I ✓

Mark Anthony Cooper, I, b. Apr. 20, 1800, 2nd. child of Thomas Cooper, Jr. and Judith Harvey. He attended and graduated with third honor from college. He studied law in the office of Judge Strong in Eatonton, Ga., admitted to the bar in 1821 in Augusta and formed a law partnership with James Clark.

He md. (1) Aug. 23, 1821, Evealine Flournoy, md. (2) June 21, 1826, Saphronia A. R. Randle, dau. of John Randle and Susannah Coffee of Hancock Co. Mr. Cooper obtained a charter for the first R. R. from Eatonton to Augusta, which was later extended to Chattanooga, Tenn. He was superintendent and inspected the road by walking over it the entire distance.

He organized a company to build what is said to have been the first cotton mill in the state of Ga. He operated a farm all this time and in 1835 he moved to Columbus, Ga., and organized a bank of which he was president. This bank is said to have survived the panic of 1837. He organized a loan company which is said to have paid an annual dividend of 16 percent.

He was elected major of the First Georgia Battalion of Volunteers for the Seminole War in Florida, mustered into the U. S. Service under Gen. Winfield Scott against Chief Osceola. At the end of the war, he and his company were mustered out at Black Creek and returned to Ga., after a six months campaign in 1836.

Mr. Cooper retired from banking to run for Congress in 1839 and was elected for two terms. In his second term, he was a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He was a Jeffersonian Democrat and voted against the Whig measures of Henry Clay. While in Congress, he was nominated for governor of Georgia by the States rights Democrats and retired from Congress to make the race against George W. Crawford, who was re-elected after a close race.

He became the first President of Georgia Agricultural Society.

On retiring from politics in 1842, Mr. Cooper came to Cass (Bartow) Co. and bought a half interest in the furnace of the brothers Stroup; they built a rolling mill, a nail factory, a flour mill five stories high, and two saw mills. The machinery was operated by power developed from Stowah river, on the banks of which the plant was located. The company owned about 1000 acres and the town grew to a population of 2000 people. Later Mr. Cooper bought out the other interest and he became the sole owner. When Sherman and his army came through, he destroyed everything at Stowah with the exception of a monument known as the friendship monument which was made by Mr. Cooper to commemorate his friends who stood by him and loaned him money he needed.

Maj. Cooper was against disunion, but after the state voted to secede from the union, he became an ardent supporter of the Confederacy and was a warm friend of Pres. Davis. He wrote a plan of attack that resulted in victory at Manassas. He lost a fortune in Confederate money.

He was a prominent Baptist, having been baptized by Jesse Mercer, and was one of the founders of Mercer University. He erected a beautiful home near his iron works. It was burned in 1857, rebuilt and lost by fire in 1884. Maj. Cooper had 4 daughters who died young: Adelea, Camilla, E. Saphronia, and Antonia.

Other children:

1. Volunia A. Cooper, b. 1827, md. Thomas Pleasant Stovall, of Augusta and Cartersville.
2. Thomas Lackington Cooper, b. Oct. 8, 1831, d. Dec. 23, 1861, md. Mary Scriven Pope, b. Feb. 26, 1833, d. May 21, 1922.

CHRISTOPHER ANTHONY, SR. ✓

Christopher Anthony, Sr., b. Mar. 24, 1744, Va., 2nd. child of Joseph Anthony, Sr., and Elizabeth Clark, md. (1) Judith Moorman, b. June 26, 1748, d. Jan. 9, 1774, md. (2) Jan. 5, 1776, Mary Jordan, b. Nov. 16, 1749, d. June 16, 1838, Cincinnati, Ohio. Mary Jordan was the dau. of Samuel and Hannah Jordan, Mansfield Co. Edward Plesants Valentine Papers, Vol II, p. 753: "Mary Jordan and Christopher Anthony declare their intention to marry 16 day 12 mo. 1775." Vol. IV, p. 2269-73, gives an excellent genealogy on the Jordan family. American Encyclopedia of Quaker Genealogy, by Hinshaw: Newhope Monthly Meeting, Tenn., record: "Anthony - 1796, 11, 26 Christopher recd (received on certificate from) Goose Creek M. M. Bedford Co."

Lynchburg's Pioneer Quakers and Their Meeting House, by Douglas S. Brown, p. 113-14: "..... The elder Christopher was appointed in February, 1769, along with Micajah Terrell to build a new meeting house at South River. This must have been the second wooden structure. During this time all the family were Quakers, and in 1788 the elder Christopher was one of the most eloquent ministers of the Society in this section. Later, in 1814, finding himself at odds in a country so wholly in favor of slavery, to which he was bitterly opposed, he moved to Cincinnati with his two daughters who were at that time unmarried. In the West he became an evangelist, known far and wide for his eloquence as a speaker. He died August 13, 1830. He disowned his daughter, Sarah, because she married Henry Davis "who departed from the faith." However, he must have forgiven her, for at his death he left her valuable estate in the heart of the city of Cincinnati."
